"The Pandora Machine"

EPISODE 1.

✓ 1. EXTERIOR. STANGMOOR PRISON. DAWN.

Bleak, grim, Dartmoor-type Prison, set on lonely moors.

✓ 2. INT. PRISON CORRIDOR, STANGMOOR PRISON. SAME TIME.

The GOVERNOR, Head Warder and Block Warder march purposely along it. Behind them the PRISON DOCTOR, a Government Official - and CHARLES KETTERING, Consultant Neuro-Surgeon to the Ministry of Prisons and Social Resettlement.

In the B.G. we hear angry growls from other prisoners and the sound of mugs and plates rattled against iron bars in protest.

✓ 3. INT. CONDEMNED CELL, STANGMOOR PRISON. SAME TIME.

The Cell of Prisoner 829, GEORGE PATRICK BARNAM, killer and vicious, hardened criminal. The officials enter his cell, solemnly. The Governor tells No 829, that final sentence is about to be passed, etc. Violent scene follows as 829 is taken away, straggling furiously.

4. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON.

Where the 'Malusyphus' process is carried out. Facing the complicated looking equipment - and the 'box' - are rows of chairs, filled with student and official observers. DR WHO and JO GRANT are amongst the latter.

Kettering gives a brief explanation of the process. Then 829 is brought in, strapped to the equipment - and the 'Malusyphus' is carried out by Kettering, assisted by the Prison Doctor.

After the 'operation' No 829 (the 113th Malusyphus 'patient') is wheeled away to recuperate, all his antisocial characteristics dissolved. The observers and students silently leave - all except one. A student remains in his seat, eyes staring and rivetted to that 'box' (the Malusyphus 'reservoir'), a look of paralysed terror on his face. Someone moves over to him - as he topples from the chair - dead!

Dr who and Kettering examine him. They notice that there are tiny teeth and scratch marks on his hands - as though he had been attacked by some sort of rodent - perhaps a large and vicious rat, although the real cause of death was obviously a heart attack. Kettering insists that witnessing the Malusyphus operation must have been too much for the student, who must have had a weak heart to start off with. But the Doctor's not so sure. He asks that the dead man's medical history be investigated.

829 almost dies.

After Dr. Student Kettering alone.

Dalbiac (the Master) has visited prison earlier.

CONFERENCE ROOM5. INT. UNIT H.Q., LONDON.

Discussion between BRIGADIER LETHBRIDGE-STEWART and CAPTAIN MIKE YATES. The Brigadier is harassed and worried. He has two major security problems to contend with. Firstly there is an impending Summit Conference in London. The delegates of the major powers have already arrived. They seek a final answer to the contentious problems facing the world. UNIT, under the immediate command of the Brigadier, is in charge of their safety.

The second problem is not quite so immediate - but serious, nonetheless. A new Defence/Attack weapon, known as the N.R.M. (Nuclear Rocket Missile), has completed its trials - and is ready for its strategic installation at a special secret site somewhere in England. The Brigadier is responsible for getting it there safely.

During the course of this establishing conversation, an irate Chinese People's Army Captain, a girl called CHIN LEE, comes in to make a complaint. She's the Aide to the Chinese General who is a delegate to the conference. She reports that some of his important papers have been stolen - and she suspects that the American delegation is responsible. She warns that if there are any further incidents of this nature - the whole success of the conference will be in jeopardy.

and Kettering

Take out 829.
In the meantime, Kettering is explaining to the skeptical Doctor just how effective the Malusyphus process really is. 829, now recovered from the operation, is handed a loaded revolver - much to the horror of Jo and the Doctor. 829 takes it, grins at them, and then begins amusing himself by playing 'Russian Roulette' with the loaded revolver. But the Doctor remains unimpressed. He doesn't like the idea of a machine that can rob a man of his true character - good or bad.

A messenger comes in and hands Kettering a note from the Prison Doctor. Re the dead student. It has been found that he had a history of Zoophobia (fear of animals), but, more specifically, he suffered from a morbid dread of rats! Yet the Process Chamber is clinically clean - no rodent of any sort could possibly have got into the place. But the Doctor's analytical mind is ticking over. He doesn't like the implications. There's something badly wrong here.

He and Jo exit - but Kettering stays behind. He wants to check over the Malusyphus equipment. He admits that it has been behaving somewhat erratically prior to the last 'operation'.

7. EXT. CAR PARK, OUTSIDE UNIT H.Q.

Captain Chin Lee comes out of the UNIT building and moves over towards her parked car. Then she hesitates. A strange, faraway look comes over her face. She stops. A V.O. is heard, giving her directions. She moves to a waste basket beside a wall. From inside her tunic she takes out some official looking Chinese documents (those stolen from the Chinese delegate) and drops them in the basket. Then she shakes her head - and frowns. The influence has passed. She gets into her car and drives away.

Moments later a hand, in C.U., takes the documents from the basket. At this point we don't know whose hand it is.

8. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON. EVENING.

✓ Kettering is working over the calculus equipment. He's alone. Suddenly he gets the strange, uncomfortable feeling that something is badly wrong. There's a faint humming sound - and the air in the chamber is becoming oppressive. He loosens his tie - but his head begins to swim. And then the whole room seems to erupt before his eyes...

9. INT. PRISON CORRIDOR, STANGMOOR PRISON. SAME TIME.

✓ And at that moment the prisoners in the cell block close by suddenly become violently agitated and start to shout. The Warders rush around trying to quieten them.

10. INT. UNIT H.Q., LONDON. SAME TIME.

Mike and the Brigadier are working late, checking schedules, arranging for UNIT security patrols, etc.

The phone rings. Bad news. The Chinese General has been murdered, inside his guarded suite! There's a political bombshell about to explode - right in the Brigadier's lap. He and Mike rush over to:

11. INT. CHINESE DELEGATE'S SUITE. (OR CONFERENCE ROOM)

It was Captain Chin Lee who made the discovery. She found the General's body soon after she'd returned from UNIT Headquarters. The General's neck was broken. Yet it seems to be an impossible murder. No one could have got past the UNIT sentries on guard outside the door. Mike and the Brigadier question them carefully. The men swear they never left their post. However, Mike notices some burn marks on one of the sentries' hands. He admits that he had been smoking a quiet cigar whilst on duty - but insists that he didn't move from his position. But nor does he understand how he came to burn himself with the butt.

Chin Lee is furious - but also, it seems, more than a little frightened. She's worried about her own behaviour pattern. Those blackouts, for instance...

The phone rings. The Brigadier answers it - and frowns. It is the FOREIGN SECRETARY. He's learnt of the murder. He realises the seriousness of the situation - the whole conference is now in danger. The murderer, whoever it is, must be caught within 24 hours, that is, before the delegates sit down at the conference table.

In the meantime, Mike has found another clue. Clamped in the dead General's hand is an American Identity Tag. It now looks as though someone from the American delegation has perpetrated the crime...

12. EXT. PRISON COURTYARD. NEXT MORNING.

X The Doctor and Jo are preparing to leave Stangmoor Prison. But the Governor himself comes out to tell them that, regretfully, they cannot go. No one may leave the area. There's been some sort of 'accident' - it may, in some way, be connected with the outbreak of sudden violence in Cell Block 'Q' last night...

13. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON, SAME TIME.

URGENT
Message from Brig. Dr. to
London.

Kettering's body has been found. Jo and the Doctor are brought in. They gasp at the sight of the mess. The place is a shambles. Everything is strewn over the floor. The windows are shattered - and the steel bars over them have been ripped apart. In the centre of the floor is the horror-stricken, twisted body of Kettering. Around the recess where the 'box' is kept there are some scorch marks. The Prison Doctor reports that the apparent cause of death, impossible though it may seem, is asphyxiation - as though by drowning!

The Doctor asks permission to examine the equipment which, strangely enough, seems unharmed, despite all other signs of havoc. He seems particularly interested in the fact that Cell Block 'Q' is right next door to the Process Chamber.

14. ~~INT. CONFERENCE ROOM, LONDON, SAME TIME.~~ Big phoning from delegates suite. Body has been discovered

The Foreign Secretary has called all the delegates together (from U.K., U.S.A., Russia and China) with their Aides and staff. He tells them of the General's death. He asks, for the sake of the Peace Talks, to be allowed to issue a guarded statement announcing that there had been an accident - rather than a murder. The AMERICAN DELEGATE agrees, perhaps just a little too quickly. Chin Lee immediately accuses him of treachery. This accusation is met with a counter-accusation. After all, it was Chin Lee who found the body... Within moments, all the delegates and their Staff are at it, hammer and tongs. It seems there are too many suspects - the American delegation, the UNIT sentries - and Chin Lee!

The Foreign Secretary draws the Brigadier aside. He asks if UNIT has made any progress with their enquiries. The Brigadier has to admit that they haven't. The Foreign Secretary warns him of the seriousness of the situation. He wants immediate action. The Brigadier says that he has sent for someone who might help - someone who might solve the mystery surrounding the General's death. But the Brigadier warns that if the answer proves to be political sabotage - then the Summit Conference is doomed to failure.

The Brigadier asks Mike if Dr Who has returned from Stangmoor yet. Mike says no.

15. 114a INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON, LATER.

Jo and the Doctor are alone in the Chamber, examining the equipment. Kettering's body has been taken away. The phone rings. Jo answers it. It is the Prison Doctor. He has discovered something in Kettering's medical history that might have a bearing. Some three years ago he was nearly drowned at Cowes when his sailing dinghy overturned. Ever since that time he has never been near the water. It is reasonable to assume that Kettering had developed a morbid fear of drowning - which links up with the apparent cause of death. The Prison Doctor has some more news for Jo. An urgent message has just been received by the Governor. Dr Who is to return to London immediately, by order of UNIT. But the Doctor feels that his immediate problem must take priority. He sends Jo to the Prison Doctor's office for a copy of Kettering's medical history. She leaves.

Alone the Doctor turns his attention back to the Talus equipment. For a moment he turns his back on the 'box'. Then, just like the ill-fated Kettering, he begins to get a strange, uncomfortable feeling. He hears the faint humming, throbbing sound - and the air becomes oppressive, as though weighed down by evil. Still with his back to the 'box' the Doctor fails to see the weird tentacles that suddenly seem to grow from it - like the arms of an octopus... Evil slimy tentacles... He gasps as they begin to entwine themselves about his body - and round his neck - crushing and strangling him...

EPISODE TWO.1. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON.

Replay tag - and pick straight up on:

The Doctor is fighting for his life - but the tentacles disappear as the door opens and Jo and the Governor walk in. The Doctor is left fighting thin air. They have seen nothing - apart from the Doctor's strange gyrations. He tries to explain the phenomena to Jo - but is somewhat hampered by the Governor's presence. The latter has come to tell the Doctor that he must go immediately to London and report to the Brigadier - a matter of extreme urgency. And, having delivered this top priority message, the Governor exits.

Naturally, the Doctor is loathe to go. He tells Jo about his fears. He wants to stay at Stangmoor and find out more about the 'box' - for, by now, he is convinced that there is something dangerous here. Discussion between the Doctor and Jo - re his theories about the 'box', etc., and why the tentacles disappeared so abruptly. The Doctor doesn't want to leave till he has solved the problem here - but UNIT have sent a helicopter for him - underlining the urgency of the business down in London.

The Doctor tells Jo that the Process Chamber should be guarded, day and night - and that at least two men must remain on duty together. Jo says she will stay behind and keep her eye on things for him.

INT. UNIT H.Q., LONDON. LATER.

The Brigadier has Chin Lee, the two UNIT sentries and the American delegation under close surveillance - but he's getting nowhere fast. Everything seems to be piling on top of him. The Foreign Secretary wants action - the rest of the delegates are beginning to quarrel amongst themselves and accusations are flying thick and fast. Tension is mounting. And, on top of everything else, he receives word that the N.R.M. is ready to be transported to its new site.

And now the telephones at UNIT H.Q. suddenly go on the blink. Furious, the Brigadier orders them to be fixed. Mike sends out for a technician.

Brigadier angrily wants to know why the Doctor hasn't arrived yet. Mike does his best to pacify him. Messenger arrives to tell them that the new Chinese delegate has arrived, the General's replacement. The Brigadier is ordered to go and meet him.

5. INT. CHINESE DELEGATE'S SUITE. LATER.

The Foreign Secretary is already at the suite, giving the new delegate, FU PENG, a diplomatic welcome. But Fu Peng is a grim faced individual. The Brigadier arrives - and Chin Lee, much subdued, informs him, and the Foreign Secretary, that Fu Peng is a tough, uncompromising character - and is all for calling off the conference, in view of the General's murder. The atmosphere gets very tense - but is immediately relieved by the arrival of the Doctor. Meanwhile, THE MASTER has made his entry. Heavily disguised as a technician he gains access to the Brigadier's office - fixes the phones - but in doing so plants a mini-transmitting mike in the room. From here onwards he will be able to hear every word spoken in the office.

7. INT. CHINESE DELEGATE'S SUITE. SAME TIME.

Fu Peng and the Foreign Secretary leave for the Conference Room. Alone with Chin Lee and the Brigadier, the Doctor starts investigating the General's murder. He asks the Brigadier if he might be allowed to see the victim's body.

Jo, the Governor and two warders (as sentries) are in the Chamber. Jo is trying to explain to the Governor something of the Doctor's fears. But she can only be very vague about them - because even she doesn't fully understand about the dangers surrounding the 'box'.

At one stage both remark on the oppressive atmosphere in the Chamber - and the Governor makes a note to have the air conditioning checked. As he says this, a Senior Warder comes in to report that the prisoners in Cell Block 'Q' are becoming restless again. The Governor leaves to check the situation.

12. INT. UNIT H.Q., LONDON.

The Brigadier and the Doctor arrive. The Doctor tells the Brigadier that neither Chin Lee, nor the sentries, nor anyone from the American delegation is responsible for the General's death. It's definitely an act of sabotage, he says, but not one perpetrated by them. It has a familiar 'feel' about it, the General's ~~neck had been broken~~ in a characteristic way - as though snapped by a type of Venusian Karate. Only two people on earth know the secret - the Doctor himself - and The Master.

Mike leaves for NRM factory.

INT: INSIDE MASTERS ROLLS.13. ~~INT.~~ A CAR NEARBY, SAME TIME.

16. INT. CHINESE DELEGATE'S SUITE, A LITTLE LATER.

Chin Lee is alone in the suite, working over some papers. The door opens - and The Master comes in. Outside we see the UNIT sentries mesmerised. The Master hypnotises Chin Lee immediately, as he did before. On the desk before her he places an explosive device. This, he tells her, is to be taken into the Conference Room whilst the delegates are there. It will be set to detonate at a specific time - whilst the meeting is in progress. She puts the bomb into her brief case.

17. INT. UNIT H.Q., LONDON, SAME TIME.

The Doctor is concerned about Jo. He rings through to Stangmoor and asks to speak to her again. Refer to Mike. But the Prison switchboard reports that the line to the Process Chamber appears to be out of order. Governor says he has a riot on his hands - can't go looking for Jo.

18. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON, SAME TIME.

CELL.
We see that the phone cable runs into a junction right beside the 'box'. And the cable is melting. Jo continues to work, unaware that the phone is out of order.

19. ~~INT.~~ UNIT H.Q., LONDON, SAME TIME.

The Doctor fears the worst. He tells the Stangmoor switchboard that they must get someone in authority to go to the Process Chamber immediately. They promise to do this - and ring back as soon as the place has been checked. As the Doctor replaces the phone his ultra sensitive hearing picks up a slight 'microphonic' ping. He frowns. He tells the Brigadier that there is a transmitter somewhere in the office. The Brigadier says that it is impossible - but Mike remembers the trouble they had with the phones earlier...

20. INT. CONFERENCE ROOM, LONDON, SAME TIME.

The delegates assemble for the opening preamble to the meeting. But the place is full of suspicion and mistrust. It seems as though the meeting is doomed to fail right at the outset.

Chin Lee arrives, carrying the brief case. She refuses to be searched by the UNIT guards. Her expression is vague and distant. She places her briefcase close to the American delegate.

21. INT. UNIT H.Q., LONDON. SAME TIME.

The Doctor impatiently awaits news from Stangmoor. In the meantime, Mike has located the hidden mini transmitter - and the Doctor has rendered it useless - but he fears that The Master already has all the information he needs.

The Foreign Secretary arrives. He says that things are critical at the conference. The Chinese delegation is making trouble - and the Russians are about to walk out. Does the Brigadier have any news about the General's murder? The Brigadier says that the Doctor has a theory and a possible solution. In which case, says the Foreign Secretary, the Doctor must go immediately to the meeting and tell the delegates. If they realise that the meeting is being sabotaged from an outside source - and not from within - something might be salvaged. But the Doctor refuses to leave the phone - he still awaits news of Jo from the Process Chamber. The Foreign Secretary insists - the Doctor is adamant. But then Mike suggests that the Doctor goes along - and he will stick by the phone. He promises to get word to the Doctor the moment there is news from Stangmoor. Very reluctantly - and with ill grace - the Doctor leaves with the Brigadier and the Foreign Secretary.

22. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON. SAME TIME.

The door to the Process Chamber clicks mysteriously and locks. Jo looks up at it and frowns. Suddenly there are voices outside in the corridor - and some Warders bang on the door, asking Jo if she's alright. Jo goes to the door and tries to open it - but it is somehow jammed shut. She feels apprehensive and frightened... And trapped.

23. INT. CONFERENCE ROOM, LONDON. SAME TIME.

The Brigadier, the Foreign Secretary and the Doctor arrive - just as the meeting is about to break up in disorder. But the Foreign Secretary and the Doctor manage to make themselves heard. Calmly and quietly the Doctor explains that he knows the person responsible for the General's murder - and assures them that the motivation behind it is not political. Diplomatically he tells them that there is a madman on the loose - and that it would be wrong to allow this important meeting to break up because of the homicidal actions of a lunatic. (He probably talks to the Russian and Fu Pang in their own languages.) The Doctor is on the verge of succeeding - when he notices something strange about Chin Lee (perhaps her eyes have a hypnotic glaze). He feels that she might be under the influence of The Master. Whilst the Foreign Secretary takes over ~~she~~ with some more diplomacy - the Doctor goes over to speak to Chin Lee. His suspicions are well founded. Now he knows that she is under The Master's powerful hypnotic influence. The Doctor immediately sets to and counters it. Slowly he snaps Chin Lee out of it - and there is mention of a bomb...

And the Doctor is standing right alongside the brief case - as the seconds tick by...

(N.B: We could know the exact detonation time - and end the ep twenty-five seconds prior to it.)

Replay tag - and pick straight up on:

The Doctor orders the Conference Room evacuated immediately. The Foreign Secretary tells everyone to leave. The delegates beat a hasty retreat.

The Doctor counters The Master's hypnotic influence over Chin Lee and is able to locate the bomb in her brief case. To his horror he discovers that it is a sophisticated device, full of Kredalite explosive, triggered to a sonic timer. He has only seconds left to render it harmless. He takes it to the window - and is about to throw it out - but sees that there is a busy city street beneath. He has to find some means of defusing it. Being a sonic timer it is locked onto some timing device nearby - but what?

In the nick of time the Doctor discovers that the clock in the Conference Room is the key. Very carefully he stops it - just a couple of seconds before detonation time.

PRISON CORRIDOR2. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON, SAME TIME.

In the meantime, Jo is still trapped in the Chamber - with the 'box'. The thing is beginning to exert its influence over her. Outside the Warders are battering at the door with fire axes.

Jo has an abhorrence of bats - and suddenly, from the vicinity of the 'box' a host of bats appear.

3. INT. CONFERENCE ROOM, LONDON, SAME TIME.

The delegates file back in - much subdued. The Foreign Secretary and the Brigadier spin them some story to try and set their minds at rest. Chin Lee, who knows the score, assures the Doctor that she will now do everything in her power to try and make the meeting a success. At least there will be no more trouble from the Chinese delegation.

The Doctor is still desperately worried about Jo - and asks if there is any news from Stangmoor.

As the Brigadier and the Doctor come out of the Conference Building. Over on the other side of the street is a car - with The Master behind the wheel. Furious, he realises that his bomb plot has been foiled. He watches as the Doctor gets into a car and drives away.

Then The Master's attention is diverted to a newspaper boarding - with the headlines 'TROUBLE AT STANGMOOR PRISON'. He remembers the telephone conversations he overheard - and the Doctor's discussion about the sinister black 'box'. The Master puts his car in gear - and drives swiftly away.

EXT. OUTSIDE UNIT H.Q., LONDON.

Unit HQ Master in Brig. - hears of situation. Please Brig at UNIT HQ

As the UNIT car drives up - Mike comes out of the building. He was on his way to the conference to tell the Doctor that Jo, though badly shaken up, is safe. At this news the Doctor refuses to get out of the car. He maintains that he has done his bit to avert a catastrophe - but now he feels certain there is another one pending at Stangmoor. The danger there, he says, is crucial. Big argument between him and the Brigadier - with the Doctor winning out. He has the Brigadier order him immediate transport to the Prison - and talks the Brigadier into coming with him to Stangmoor - even if it's only a flying visit.

8. INT. GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, STANGMOOR PRISON, LATER.

Gov hears that Dalbiac is coming.

The Governor informs Jo that the Doctor is on his way. In the meantime, he has had the Process Chamber put out of bounds to everyone - and there is a security guard on the door. For the moment the trouble in 'Q' Block has quietened down. Jo says she's going to her digs to rest - after her ordeal.

9. EXT. PRISON COURTYARD.

TK Just can't miss Set

The Master's car arrives. He tells the guard that his name is Dalbiac - one of the discoverers of the Malusyphus process. He's heard about the trouble - and is here to take-over the equipment. He wants to see the Governor at once.

Interview between The Master, posing as Dalbiac, and the Governor. The Master assures him that there will be no more trouble from the equipment - as long as he is permitted to work on it, uninterrupted. During the course of this interview The Master has exerted his hypnotic power over the Governor, thus gaining his complete cooperation.

He and the Governor go to the Process Chamber.

20. EXT. BALLISTICS FACTORY.

The convoy, consisting of a truck carrying the N.R.M., plus a couple of UNIT 'Q' cars, with Mike Yates in the lead, move off.

21. INT. GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, STANGMOOR PRISON.

Jo, the Brigadier and the Doctor are ushered into the Governor's office. The Governor, a vague and distant expression on his face, greets them. The Doctor notices this - and is immediately on his guard. He shouts a warning to the others. But it's too late. Armed prisoners walk in - and behind them - The Master. Confrontation.

22. INT. CONDEMNED CELL, STANGMOOR PRISON.

Jo, the Governor and the Brigadier are locked in the Condemned Cell.

23. INT. GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, STANGMOOR PRISON.

The Doctor, guarded by The Master's convict minions, remains in the Governor's office. The Master taunts and gloats over him - telling him that no matter what happens to the others, his fate is sealed. On the wall he has pinned a map showing the route of the N.R.M. It runs within ten miles of Stangmoor. The Doctor realises that The Master plans to hijack the N.R.M. He further realises that The Master knows the significance of the 'box'. With these two 'weapons' - The Master could become invincible.

But The Master has made his first mistake. So engrossed is he by the details of his plan - that his attention is momentarily diverted. The Doctor grasps the opportunity to deliver some Venusian karate - and makes his escape.

24. INT. AND EXT. STANGMOOR PRISON.

There follows a chase sequence through the prison - as the Doctor flees desperately - pursued by the armed convicts.

25. INT. CORRIDOR OUTSIDE PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON. LATER.

The Doctor darts along the darkened corridor. Sounds of his pursuers in the b.g. He spots an open doorway - and dashes inside.

26. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON. SAME TIME.

The Doctor gasps for breath. The room is dark. Then, outside the door he hears The Master's sinister laughter - as the bolt is shot home. The Doctor switches on the light - and sees the reason for The Master's triumph. He's trapped in the Process Chamber. The 'box' stands on a table in the middle of the room. It throbs with malevolence, its evil power multiplying all the time. Its radiation locks onto the Doctor. The nightmares begin.

Horrified, the Doctor watches as Silurians, Primeords, maybe Daleks, Cybermen, etc., the creatures and monsters he's fought in the past, are re incarnated before his eyes... They advance towards him.

EPISCODE FOUR.1. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON.

Replay tag - and pick straight up on:

This time the Doctor is really trapped. The door behind him is locked - and no one can come in to disseminate the power of the 'box'. If he is to survive - then he must find some way of fighting it - alone.

The monsters from the past bear down on him - horrific and terrifying. The only weapon the Doctor can use against them - is logic. He assumes an attitude of Andromedic Yoga. Aloud he reasons that the monsters conjured up by the 'box' are the creation of evil - and therefore, to some extent, hallucinatory. But his faith in this is shaken when a monster tears at his clothes. Nevertheless he stands firm - pitting his will against the 'box'. Blue sparks of energy flash from it to his head - but these sparks are, in fact, 'shorting' the power - and momentarily draining it. A streak of the Doctor's hair has turned pure white where the impulse spark struck him.

The monsters begin to disintegrate - and finally disappear. The energy from the 'box' subsides - but the thing still seethes with frustration. The Doctor realises that his reprieve is only temporary. Soon the power will build up again - and yet another attack will be launched on him.

2. INT. CORRIDOR OUTSIDE, SAME TIME.

Outside in the corridor, The Master and his men leave. The Master is certain that the Doctor will have died from shock by now. His arch enemy is finished, so he believes.

A moment or two later 829 - who has taken no active part in the prison revolt - comes along the corridor, broom in hand. He hears the commotion from the Process Chamber - and unlocks the door. The Doctor, badly shaken from his experience, comes out. He locks the door behind him.

3. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON, SAME TIME.

Alone in the Chamber, the 'box' begins to throb dangerously again. It is rebuilding its lost energy - but now it must seek fresh sources of supply. And the thing begins to move of its own volition...

4. INT. GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, STANGMOOR PRISON.

The Master has had the Brigadier brought to him. He tells the Brigadier that he wants him to 'hijack' the N.R.M. Naturally, the Brigadier's first reaction is one of anger and incredulity. But The Master begins to exert his hypnotic influence over him. Within an hour, he says, if Mike Yates is keeping to his strict schedule, the N.R.M. convoy will pass within ten miles of the prison. At that point the Brigadier, with a party of armed convicts, will order it to stop and re route it to Stangmoor. If these orders are not carried out - the hostages, Jo, the Governor and the prison staff, will be killed. For the benefit of the convict ringleaders, The Master explains that his plan is to threaten to send the N.R.M. to blast the Summit Conference in London. He will barter the lives of the delegates for the prisoners' freedom. (Of course, The Master fully intends to blow up the conference anyway.)

Unable to resist The Master's influence, the Brigadier has to comply. The plans for stealing the N.R.M. are outlined. In the meantime, The Master switches on the TV in the Governor's office - and watches a televised broadcast of the meeting getting under way.

Jo and the Governor are still prisoners - with the latter still suffering from The Mastershypnotic influence. They are locked in - and outside their cell is an armed convict.

The Doctor approaches cautiously. He surprises the convict and overpowers him with a further display of Venusian karate. Jo is overjoyed to see the Doctor - but the Governor is on the verge of giving the alarm. The Doctor has to counter-act the hypnotic trance he's in - and finally snaps him out of it. They plan to release the remainder of the prison staff - but Jo says that they are too heavily guarded at this time.

The Doctor guides Jo and the Governor away from the cell.

8. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON.

The Master returns to the Process Chamber to make sure the Doctor is dead. When he gets there he finds that the door is yawning open. Furthermore, the 'box' has moved. Still believing that he is immune to its power - he approaches it. But suddenly the thing begins to throb ominously. It sparks and crackles with venom. Now The Master sees his own particular nightmare projected - umpteen images of the Doctor materialise before his eyes - to mock and taunt him.

The Master beats a hasty retreat. He places a sentry outside and has the door barricaded. He makes a mental note to solve this particular problem when he has more time. He is still determined to use the 'box' as a weapon of destruction.

9. EXT. COUNTRY ROAD.

Hi jack sequence.

The Brigadier intercepts the convoy on a lonely road. He stops it and tells Mike Yates to reroute the N.R.M. towards Stangmoor. But Mike had received prior instructions from the Brigadier himself that the schedule was not to be changed under any circumstance. He queries this new order. Still under The Master's influence, the Brigadier rants and raves at Mike. But Mike refuses to be intimidated.

At that moment the UNIT escort are ambushed and set upon by the convicts. The lorry is hi jacked - but Mike has survived the attack. Unseen by the Brigadier or the convicts, he jumps on the tailboard of the N.R.M. truck and hangs on grimly as the vehicle gathers speed - and turns off onto another road leading to Stangmoor, ten miles away.

10. INT. PROCESS CHAMBER, STANGMOOR PRISON.

✓ The guard left by The Master outside the Process Chamber - is dead, a ghastly grimace contorting his features. His hair is snow white. The barricaded door has been blasted open - and the 'box' has gone.

- 10a ~~CONDENSED~~ CELL - Breakout.

11. INT. GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, STANGMOOR PRISON.

✓ The Master organises a search for the Doctor - and then someone reports to him that Jo and the Governor are loose. The Master orders that all three are to be shot on sight.

12. EXT. PRISON COURTYARD.

✓ The Brigadier returns with the N.R.M. truck. Mike drops off the tail-board unseen and hides.

✓ The Master comes down to take charge of things. The N.R.M. lorry is driven into the prison workshops (which have a glass roof) - and this will become the launching site for the weapon.

13. INT. PRISON CORRIDOR.

The 'Box' starts dragging Mike towards itself.

Mike darts into a prison corridor. He has drawn his service revolver - and holds it at the ready. At the far end of the corridor there is a barred gate - and in front of that is the 'box'. Mike only knows of the thing by reputation. He approaches it cautiously. Suddenly the 'box' shoots out violent energy sparks at Mike's head - and he only just manages to duck back behind a corner. Great chunks of stone disintegrate as the energy strikes the spot where Mike has been. He empties his revolver into the thing - as it fumes and splutters with apparent rage. Unable to strike at Mike direct - the 'box' materialises a 'Gorgon-type' monster - a horrific and vicious looking thing, an embodiment of all the evil contained in the 'box'. It appears to pick up the 'box' - and then move to the corner where Mike has taken cover.

✓ It's on the verge of confronting him - when it hesitates. Someone else has come into its aura. Mike looks over his shoulder - to see 829 ambling onto the scene. The 'box' and its attendant creature 'spark-out' to 829 - but the 'processed' ex convict merely shakes his head uncomprehendingly (there is no evil source within 829 for the 'box' to feed on). Mike yells at 829, and whilst the creature and the 'box' hesitate - he and the ex convict make their escape.

14. EXT. PRISON COURTYARD.

✓ Some of the convicts, searching for the escapees, hear gunshots. They dash away towards the sound.

15. INT. GOVERNOR'S OFFICE.

Jo, the Doctor and the Governor have reached the latter's office. There they meet the dazed and confused Brigadier. The Governor picks up his emergency telephone - but, of course, the switchboard at the other end is manned by convicts. The Doctor, in the meantime, snaps the Brigadier out of his hypnotic trance. He is horrified at what he has been made to do by The Master. The Doctor listens as he tells him all the details of the hi jack.

The Governor says that if they are going to resolve this crisis - then they had better get some outside help - quickly. The only thing to do is to get to the prison switchboard and contact the outside world. They leave the Governor's office.

...And move into the prison corridor where Mike has been (by now the 'box' has disappeared). But their way is barred by the 'riot' gate at the bottom. They turn to go back the way they came - only to come face to face with the convicts sent out by The Master to destroy them - who have come up behind.

The convicts smile coldly and raise their rifles, fully intending to shoot down the trapped escapees in cold blood...

EPISCODE FIVE.1. INT. PRISON CORRIDOR.

Replay tag - and pick straight up on:

The convicts, rifles raised, are about to shoot down Jo, the Doctor, the Brigadier and the Governor.

But suddenly they freeze in horror. Projected on the far wall, in shadowy but awful detail, is the outline of a gallows - with a body swinging gently on it - the manifestation of their worst nightmares. They turn. Behind them is that terrifying Gorgon monster - and in front of it - the 'box'. They forget their victims and turn their guns on this new threat. But the 'box' is too quick for them. Violent ~~sparks~~ energy sparks dart and jump from it to their heads - killing them instantly: their faces grimace with shock and their hair immediately turns white. Now the 'box's' power is gaining with this new replenishment.

But the Doctor and his three companions make use of this diversion to make their escape. The Doctor, still able, to a degree, to resist the power-energy of the 'box', forms himself into a temporary screen. The creature screeches at him - but they manage to get away, with Jo and the Brigadier picking up the convicts' discarded rifles.

2. INT. PRISON WORKSHOP.

Meanwhile, The Master has had the N.R.M. lorry driven into the workshop area. (This is the largest of our sets - and, if possible, there should be a gallery running around the walls, halfway up, where, under normal circumstances, the guards would patrol.) The N.R.M. is being set up. The complicated control system is in the back of the lorry. The rocket itself is levered into a vertical position with its nose pointing towards the glass roof of the workshop.

The Master is vectoring in on his proposed target - the conference building where the Summit Meeting is being held. TV monitors show the target area.

~~From a vantage point up on the gallery Mike Yates watches the preparations.~~

3. INT. GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, STANGMOOR PRISON.

With their way to the Prison switchboard barred, Jo, the Governor, the Brigadier and the Doctor return to the Governor's office. The Doctor's worst fears in regards to the 'box' have been realised. The thing is becoming omnipotent - its power increasing all the time. It must be destroyed somehow. The Doctor knows that he has a built-in resistance to it - but he knows that it is only temporary. If it continues to increase its evil-energy output even he will be powerless against it.

Meanwhile, The Master's crazy scheme to destroy the Summit Conference is going ahead unchecked. Something must be done about that - quickly.

They decide to split forces. The Governor and the Brigadier will attempt to release the prison staff - whilst Jo and the Doctor see if they can thwart The Master's plan. The Governor takes a set of master keys from his desk.

From the direction of the Prison Workshop we can hear the sound of gunfire.

Voxer gets it. The box draws him close - and kills him.

Mailer runs into Workshop - to report to the Master. Panic begins.

MOBILE HQ Brig & Benton

Jo and Mike meet in Governor's Office. Jo will fix radio - Mike will attempt to disrupt the firing of the NRM.

4. INT. PRISON WORKSHOP.

Mike has found a discarded rifle. From his vantage point he opens fire on the convicts below and the N.R.A. lorry. The Master has to stop work on the rocket and take cover. The convicts return Mike's fire. It's obvious that Mike will not be able to hold them off for very long.

(Aa)

5. INT. PRISON COURTYARD.

The Doctor and his three friends run into the courtyard. Convict snipers open up on them. They separate - the Brigadier and the Governor shoot off to try and release the staff - the Doctor and Jo make for the general direction of the Prison Workshop.

6. INT. PRISON WORKSHOP.

Mike is about to retreat from his position, having run out of ammunition, when Jo and the Doctor join him. Quickly he recounts his own escape from the ambush earlier and tells the Doctor that The Master is about ready to activate the rocket.

7. INT. PRISON SWITCHBOARD. (UTILITY) SAME TIME.

The Master is phoning through a prepared warning to the conference building, suggesting that the American C.I.A. are planning to destroy the Summit Meeting.

8. INT. PRISON WORKSHOP. SAME TIME.

Jo and Mike are captured by the convicts - but they create enough of a struggle to allow the Doctor to escape.

9. INT. CELL BLOCK 'Q'.

The Brigadier and the Governor arrive to find that the way to Cell Block 'Q' (where the staff are imprisoned) is guarded by the 'box' and its attendant Gorgon monster. Their plan to release the prison staff seems doomed to failure.

But at this point 829 walks onto the scene. Again the 'box' sends out its probing sparks of energy - but 829 has no evil impulses for it to feed on. Furthermore, 829 has no fear. He approaches the thing innocently. The Brigadier and the Governor watch in horrified fascination as the thing throws out more and more sparks - to no avail.

Finally, the Gorgon monster hurls itself at 829, and, screaming with fury, it lifts him bodily up. It carries him away. The 'box' follows.

10. INT. PRISON WORKSHOP.

Jo and Mike are brought to The Master. He is about to order them shot - when a terrified convict runs in to report that the Gorgon monster - and the 'box' - is on the rampage. The Master looks to the main entrance of the workshops. If the thing comes it will come from that direction. He orders Jo and Mike to be tied in front of the doorway - to form a human barricade. The 'box', if it comes to the workshop, will attack them first.

Whilst the prisoners are binding Jo and Mike, The Master returns to the N.R.A. But unknown to him, the Doctor is close by. Stealthily he moves towards the lorry, just as The Master completes his calculations.

11. INT. CELL BLOCK 'C'.

The Governor and the Brigadier release the prison staff.

12. INT. PRISON WORKSHOP.

The Gorgon monster appears on the gallery above the workshops. It has 829 held above its head. It hurls him down on the convicts below. They scatter and open up on the Gorgon with their rifles.

13. EXT. PRISON COURTYARD.

Some of the released warders, led by the Brigadier, move across the courtyard towards the Prison Workshop.

14. INT. PRISON SWITCHBOARD. (UTILITY) SAME TIME.

Meanwhile the Governor and some of his men have reached the switchboard. They send out an urgent call for help.

15. INT. PRISON WORKSHOP.

By now The Master is ready to fire the N.R.M. But the Gorgon has reached the floor of the workshop. It moves towards the lorry - and spots the Doctor hiding down beside the bonnet. With a roar of fury the creature lurches towards him. The Master sees that the Doctor is to be the victim - and gives out with a laugh of triumph.

The Gorgon reaches out for the Doctor - as he retreats towards the cab of the lorry. Jo and Mike watch helplessly as the thing prepares to attack the Doctor.

EPISODE SIX.

1. INT. PRISON WORKSHOP.

Replay tag - and pick straight up on:

The Gorgon advances on the Doctor. There is no time for him to attempt to defend himself. He can only fight the 'box' with his intellect, not the attendant monster. But the thing is a Gorgon, the epitome of evil. The Doctor's hand touches the rear view mirror on the cab of the lorry. He swivels it round - until it reflects the image of the monster onto itself. The thing screeches - and begins to disintegrate.

But now the 'box' itself is all powerful. It radiates energy from somewhere beyond the workshop - and forms another, identical monster. And this begins to advance on Jo and Mike. However, by now the Brigadier and the prison staff have arrived on the scene - and they open fire on it, distracting it sufficiently to free the two captives.

Meanwhile, The Master is at the N.R.M. controls inside the lorry. The Doctor follows him into it. There is a struggle and The Master hits the Doctor with a giant spanner - he falls and lies still on the floor.

The Brigadier calls on The Master to surrender - but the latter tells them that if they move one step closer - he'll press the detonation button and fire the missile.

Inside the lorry the Doctor is regaining consciousness. Unseen by The Master he crawls into the cab. The Master has his finger poised over the button. The Doctor starts the lorry's engine and slams it into gear. The vehicle takes off with a lurch - and the Doctor drives it straight out of the workshop area and into

2. EXT. PRISON COURTYARD.

As the lorry comes screeching out of the workshop. The Doctor hauls at the steering wheel, making the vehicle rock all over the place. Then he deliberately drives it into the nearest wall. The impact knocks him out, but the N.R.M. has been severed from its firing cable and has become automatically primed. Badly shaken, but unhurt, The Master staggers from the lorry. He goes to the unmanned Main doors and opens them. But from his P.O.V. we see

3. EXT. OUTSIDE THE PRISON, SAME TIME.

Troops or police, summonsed earlier by the Governor from the Prison telephone switchboard, approaching.

4. EXT. PRISON COURTYARD, SAME TIME.

Hastily The Master slams the doors and dashes away into the far corner of the courtyard - just as Mike, Jo and the Brigadier come running to the lorry. They drag the Doctor from it - and he begins to recover. Mike goes and checks the N.R.M. He reports that the warhead on the rocket is primed - and the thing will self destruct itself within a given time, just 29 minutes. But Mike has also found that the lorry is still driveable.

5. INT. PRISON WORKSHOP.

The second Gorgon monster, carrying the 'box', has retreated into the prison building. But the warders feel disinclined to go and search for it.

6. EXT. PRISON COURTYARD.

The Doctor is formulating a plan to get rid of the primed rocket - and also the 'box'. Mike is to drive the lorry out onto the moors, to some remote spot. Whilst he's doing that the Doctor will locate the 'box' and try and connect it to the firing cable which Mike will trail behind. His theory is that the energy created by the exploding N.R.M. might produce a vortex-vacuum and drain the 'box' of its evil power. It's a long shot - but there is other alternative.

Mike starts up the lorry and drives it out, followed by a UNIT jeep to bring him back. Behind the lorry there trails the firing cable.

In the meantime, the Brigadier reports that The Master has disappeared. For the time being he must be forgotten. The Doctor orders the prison to be evacuated - and he goes in search of the 'box'. He'll keep in touch with Jo and the Brigadier via a UNIT walkie-talkie. (Jo and the Brigadier have volunteered to stay behind.)

7. INT. CELL BLOCK 'Q'.

The 'box' and its attendant monster are lurking in the shadows in Cell Block 'Q' - waiting for fresh victims.

8. EXT. MOORLAND ROAD.

Mike is driving the lorry, followed by the jeep, along a moorland road. The time is ticking by.

9. INT. CELL BLOCK 'Q'.

The Doctor has found the 'box'. He reports its location by walkie-talkie to Jo and the Brigadier. They are to bring the N.R.M. firing cable into the Cell Block. The Doctor keeps the monster at bay with a pocket mirror. The creature shrinks back into a corner. The 'box' begins to send out energy sparks - but, for the time being, they make no impression on the Doctor. His will begins to fight the evil power emanating from it.

10. EXT. MOORS.

Mike has stopped the lorry. He reports, by walkie-talkie, that the N.R.M. is far enough away to explode harmlessly. He gets out of the vehicle and walks back to the jeep. But he finds that the UNIT soldier behind the wheel is - The Master. He points a revolver at Mike.

11. INT. CELL BLOCK 'Q'.

The Doctor is still 'holding' the 'box', fighting its evil energy with the power of his own will - but the strain is intolerable.

Jo and the Brigadier arrive with the firing cable. The Doctor calls to them to approach. For the time being he is nullifying the effect of the 'box'. It's concentrating all its energy on him. But he can't hold it for much longer. They must connect the N.R.M. cable to the input valve on the 'box' - and they must hurry, there's not much time left.

11. INT. CELL BLOCK 'Q'. (Cont.)

But at that moment The Master's voice is heard through the Doctor's walkie-talkie. He tells them he's holding Mike a prisoner near the lorry. If they detonate the rocket - Mike will die.

(INTERCUT BETWEEN MOORS AND CELL BLOCK 'Q')

The Doctor is in a terrible quandary. It seems as though he must sacrifice Mike. The Brigadier speaks into his walkie-talkie and tells The Master that the rocket is primed to go off anyway - and its detonation can't be stopped. But The Master chuckles. He can stop it. His genius can defuse the firing mechanism. Grimly the Doctor realises that this is so.

But the Doctor is trapped. If he breaks his concentration - the 'box' and its monster will destroy them all. It becomes a grim race against time now. Can The Master defuse the N.R.M. before the deadline? And can the Doctor hold out anyway? Already the 'box' is beginning to send out hallucinatory images to haunt him - and this indicates that it is beginning to break down the Doctor's will.

12. EXT. MOORS. (OR INTERIOR OF THE LORRY)

The Master is working under difficulties. He must keep Mike covered by his revolver - and use his other hand to defuse the timing mechanism. But somehow he's managing.

13. INT. CELL BLOCK 'Q'. SAME TIME.

The Doctor can feel the 'box' beginning to gain the upper hand. He yells to Jo and the Brigadier to get away. But as long as there's a chance they will stay - they've almost managed to connect up the firing cable to the input valve by now.

14. EXT. MOORS. (OR INTERIOR OF THE LORRY)

Mike, figuring that he's doomed anyway, lunges at The Master - and knocks the gun from his hand. There follows a desperate struggle. Mike manages to yell into the walkie-talkie - and tell the Doctor to go ahead with his plan.

15. INT. CELL BLOCK 'Q'.

Jo and the Brigadier have connected up the 'box' to the cable.

16. EXT. MOORS.

Mike knocks The Master flying. And then makes a dash for the jeep. He scrambles into it - just as The Master staggers into the back of it. Mike starts the engine and drives off. The Master grabs Mike and tries to gain control of the jeep. It swerves madly - and The Master falls out. Mike drives on.

The Master looks back towards the distant lorry with horror - realising that the N.R.M. is due to go off at any moment. He starts running.

17. INT. CELL BLOCK 'Q'. SAME TIME.

Jo and the Brigadier back away. The Doctor is failing fast now. The Gorgon creature in the corner advances towards him. The 'box' begins to shake and spark. The Gorgon grabs the cable - and is about to tug it free of the 'box' when...

18. EXT. MOORS.

The N.R.M. explodes.

19. INT. CELL BLOCK 'C'.

There is a great wooshing sound - the 'box' literally splits asunder - it's energy rushing away, absorbed by the distant explosion. The Gorgon creature is shattered and dematerialises immediately.

The Doctor collapses. Jo and the Brigadier rush to help him.

20. INT. GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, STANGMOOR PRISON, LATER.

The Doctor has recovered. Mike has returned safely. The Governor, Jo and the Brigadier are watching the successful conclusion to the first debate of the Summit Meeting on TV. Quick post mortem discussion. Mike and the Brigadier assume that The Master was destroyed by the N.R.M. The Doctor is not so sure.

21. EXT. MOORLAND ROAD.

A farmer's truck stops for a hitch hiker on the road. The man's clothes are tattered and he looks like a tramp - but, of course, it is The Master - badly shaken, but very much alive.
